Pastor's Letter

Ever since I was a child, I would read the Maryknoll Magazine that came to our home, and with each issue I became more and more fascinated by the missionaries who would go to far off lands to proclaim the Gospel message. After three years in the Seminary, I decided that I had to try out the life of a missionary, so I took some time to travel to Bolivia, where I spent three months studying at the Maryknoll Language and Cultural Center and living and working in an orphanage. After that experience I realized that God was calling me to be a priest right here in the United States; but I have maintained a close relationship with the Maryknoll Fathers and Brothers and Sisters, and I try to support them in whatever way I can.

Next weekend we will be blessed by having Father Joseph Donovan, M.M. join us for our Masses. Father Donovan has been a Maryknoll Missionary priest for 29 years, and has spent 25 of those years working with the indigenous populations of Peru. I have known Father Donovan for about two years and it is always wonderful to hear his stories of how he has shared the Gospel of Jesus Christ in places that I can not even find on a map! I know that he will enlighten us with his experiences of missionary work. Yes, there will be a second collection and I have already given my check to Maryknoll for this year. I know that after hearing Father Donovan you will feel called to do the same. So, please be as generous as your means will allow.

Maryknoll depends entirely upon the interest, prayers and support of its friends. You will be invited to learn more about Maryknoll through the Maryknoll and Revista Maryknoll magazines. And, please note: Maryknoll will not share your name, address, or telephone number with any other organization! I think that this is important for everyone to know. While he is here at Holy Name of Jesus, Father Donovan will be happy to talk with anyone who is interested in learning more about mission life or perhaps becoming an overseas missionary.

We are all called by our Baptism to be missionaries, to share the Good News of Jesus Christ by our words and our actions. We may not all be called to travel to foreign lands to proclaim this message, but we can certainly support those who do so with our prayers and donations!

May the Lord continue to bless us always and in all ways, Father Paul

FDA May Restrict Acetaminophen Advisers Tell the Agency to Lower Over-the-Counter Dose of Popular Pain Drug

By Kathryn Foxhall
WebMD Health News

July 1, 2009 -- The FDA should put new restrictions on acetaminophen, an advisory committee recommended Tuesday, saying the move would protect people from the potential toxicity that can cause liver failure and even death.

The FDA does not have to follow its advisory committees' recommendations, but it usually does. It will likely be months before the FDA makes a final decision on the drug.

You might not know "acetaminophen," because that's the drug's generic name. One of the nation's top drugs for pain relief, acetaminophen is found in many over-the-counter products -- including Tylenol, aspirin-free Anacin, Excedrin, and numerous cold medicines. It's also found in many prescription drugs.

Billions of doses of acetaminophen are used safely every year. But acetaminophen-related overdoses cause 56,000 emergency room visits, 26,000 hospitalizations, and 458 deaths annually, according to studies done between 1990 and 1998.

Some people inadvertently take more than is recommended. Others -- such as people with underlying liver disease -- are more at risk of liver injury from acetaminophen use. Because acetaminophen is in so many products, people sometimes take two or more products containing acetaminophen without realizing it. That risk extends to children, who may be poisoned because they swallow the medication. Sometimes caregivers mistakenly give children too much acetaminophen.

Acetaminophen: Limiting Dosage Amounts

The advisory committee voted that the single adult acetaminophen dose should be no more than 650 milligrams, significantly less than the current 1,000 milligrams often contained in two tablets of certain over-the-counter pain products. The panel of 37 doctors and other experts also said that the maximum total dose for 24 hours, now at 4,000 milligrams, should be decreased.

Some advisory committee members said the move should help lower the overall amounts of acetaminophen that people take. Some on the panel said they were influenced by research indicating there are changes in liver function in some people who had taken only the currently recommended levels.

DID YOU KNOW?ONLINE TEENS: WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW?

Fully 32 percent of online teens have been contacted by someone with no connection to them or any of their friends, and 7 percent of online teens say they have felt scared or uncomfortable as a result of contact by an online stranger. Although several factors are associated with high levels of stranger contact, the large majority of these interactions are benign. But to keep children safe from Internet predators, the L.A. City Attorney's Office offers a variety of age – appropriate Internet Safety presentations.
